

CALL FOR PAPERS

Utilizing Offshore Resources for Renewable Energy Development: Marine Renewable and Offshore Wind Energy

November/December 2020 issue

Utilizing Offshore Resources for Renewable Energy Development will bring together insight, perspectives, and the current state of research and development of marine renewable (wave, tidal, ocean current, salinity gradient, ocean thermal) and offshore wind energy internationally, with a specific focus on U.S. development. The special issue will include contributions from government/regulators, U.S. national laboratories, developers, industry/consultants, academia, and marine renewable energy test centers.

This special issue of the Marine Technology Society Journal will cover the following subject areas:

- Resource assessment and site characterization
- Technology development and market acceleration
- Field measurements and laboratory experiments
- Grid integration, control and electrical connections, cybersecurity
- Full-scale installations and deployments
- Environmental effects, monitoring, and mitigation
- Economics and social aspects

The MTS Journal is the flagship publication of the Marine Technology Society. It publishes the highest caliber, peer-reviewed papers on subjects of interest to the society: marine technology, ocean science, marine policy, and education.
